

The New Jersey Law Column

The New Jersey Association for Justice honors its past presidents at Atlantic City program attended by over 1600 lawyers from around the country during April 6-8 2016.

Michael Maggiano was photographed at Harrahs Atlantic City as he traveled from one lecture to another teaching hundreds of trial lawyers from all over the country.

During the three day program entitled Boardwalk Seminar 2016 he spoke during five varied programs on trial advocacy, trial diplomacy and professional conduct. The programs were sponsored by the New Jersey Association for Justice, celebrating 35 Years of Success in fighting causes of justice for the people of New Jersey and citizens across the United States.

Mr. Maggiano has been involved in all offices and board positions for all 35 years.

Michael Maggiano was President of the Association from 1989-1990. He is sought after for his motivating talks to serve justice and fight for those who without the trial lawyer would never have a voice heard nor a forum to evaluate the citizen's cause.

He and his colleagues proudly carry the message of the association that the Law is not settled until it is settled right.

His passion to serve the public and his profession has inspired decades of trial lawyers, young and not so young, to take a higher step up for justice and encourage others to travel the higher road with them.

"My father, who was a much loved home town doctor, taught me that a true leader leads by service to the community and his service sets an example that will speak greater than any words."

Founded in the late 1940s and incorporated in 1976, the New Jersey Association for Justice (NJAJ) is headquartered in Trenton, New Jersey. NJAJ is a statewide association of over 2,600 members in private practice and public service, paralegals, law clerks, law students and law school graduates not yet admitted to the bar.
